

Univar Solutions Named Exclusive Distributor of SD Head USA Pharmaceutical Excipients in North America

Univar Solutions' pharmaceutical ingredients portfolio will be strengthened by the addition of a broad range of cellulose ethers and other excipient solutions

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill., Nov. 12, 2024 /PRNewswire/ -- Univar Solutions LLC ("Univar Solutions" or "the Company"), a leading global solutions provider to users of specialty ingredients and chemicals, today announced its selection as the sole channel partner for SD Head USA LLC ("SD Head USA") for the pharmaceutical industry across North America. This strategic alliance and the exclusive pharmaceutical distribution partnership encompasses the international manufacturer's excipients, including cellulose ethers and empty plant-based capsules, designed primarily for oral solid dosage forms of pharmaceuticals and nutraceuticals. In addition, Univar Solutions is an authorized distribution channel for SD Head USA in the nutraceutical and food industries.

Univar Solutions' pharmaceutical ingredients adds a broad range of cellulose ethers and other excipient solutions

"We are delighted to forge this new partnership with SD Head USA, a frontrunner in the production of cellulose and plant-based capsules," said Aaron Lee, global vice president of health and nutrition for Univar Solutions. "This collaboration brings mutual benefits for SD Head USA and their North American customers. The agreement enhances our excipient offerings, introducing an extensive selection of methyl cellulose (MC), ethylcellulose (EC), sodium carboxymethyl cellulose (CMC-Na), and hydroxypropyl methylcellulose (HPMC) pharmaceutical-grade products, as well as a comprehensive array of capsule options."

Excipients are multi-functional substances that play a crucial role in both pharmaceutical and nutraceutical applications by adding to the stability, bioavailability, and overall efficacy of medications, facilitating their proper absorption and delivery within the body. Among these, MC, EC, CMC-Na, and HPMC stand out for their adaptability and versatility in pharmaceutical uses. HPMC and MC excel as emulsifiers, thickeners, and stabilizers, while HPMC is also known for its controlled release applications. Notably, cellulose ethers like MC and HPMC are derived from renewable resources, making them effective and environmentally conscious choices for pharmaceutical applications. This aligns with the growing industry and consumer demand for eco-friendly and sustainable manufacturing practices.

"Our partnership with Univar Solutions is a significant milestone for SD Head USA," said Johnnie Chen, chief operating officer for SD Head USA. "Pharmaceuticals represent a strategic opportunity for our company and with Univar Solutions' extensive distribution network, expertise, technical capabilities, and leadership in this sector, we can't think of a more outstanding partner to expand our reach. We're confident this collaboration will drive innovation and deliver exceptional value to our customers."

SD Head USA, one of the premier global manufacturers of cellulose ether products and vegetable capsules, brings a commitment to manufacturing excellence with a consistent and reliable supply of high-quality excipients and drug delivery vehicles. This agreement underscores both organizations' focus on sustainability, quality, and innovation in advancing pharmaceutical formulations, and emphasizes the critical role of high-quality excipients in drug delivery systems, helping enhance drug efficacy and patient outcomes.

Univar Solutions takes a unique approach to bringing solutions to the market by delivering on the pharmaceutical industry's needs and combining an extensive product portfolio and global distribution footprint with a renowned supplier base as well as deep supply chain expertise.
